• Large Language Models (LLMs)

- Generative Seq2seq Learning: We propose a generative error correction (GER) framework that uses LLM to generate the ground-truth transcription from N-best hypotheses in seq2seq tasks (e.g., ASR, AST, MT). [7] [6] [5] [4]
- Text-to-Speech Synthesis with Human Feedback: We introduce RLHF techniques into TTS models to improve the subjective quality of synthesized speech, and the robustness of zero-shot TTS. [2] [1]

• Speech Processing

- Efficient Adaptation of Speech Foundation Models: We propose STAR, a source-free unsupervised domain adaptation method that can adapt Whisper to target domains using less than one-hour unlabeled data. [3]
- Speech Recognition: We propose several noise-robust ASR approaches under adverse conditions, including front-end enhancement, feature quantization, GER denoising, etc. [16] [15] [14] [11] [6]
- Speech Enhancement and Separation: We propose a speech enhancement (SE) approach using classifier-guided diffusion model, and we explore improving noise-robustness of speech separation with SE front-end. [12] [13]

• Multimodal

- Audio-visual Representation Learning: We propose several audio-visual speech recognition approaches. [8] [9] [10]
